MAN AFTER THEIR OWN HEART.

Convivial Gentlemen Realized They Had Found a Brother.

Not many days ago two men who had dined not wisely but too well boarded one of the pay-as-you-enter cars at the Grand Central.

The car started with a very violent suddenness—so violent that the two cheery gentlemen were thrown off their balance, landing in a heap on top of a very solemn gentleman on one of the seats. This individual had been in the car for some time, and had preserved an austere solemnity of demeanor that was most impressive.

At once the two men who had lost their balance became profuse in their apologies to the solemn one.

"Oh, 'm shoshorry—please 'scuse me," requested one.

"Beggardon—couldn't—hic—help—myself," said the other.

The solemn gentleman, who had listened with magisterial severity, now opened his mouth in turn and remarked benignly:

"Oh, thashallright. Car sharted like—hic—rocket—thashallright."

For a moment they looked at him dazed; then their expressions changed to delighted surprise. In him they had recognized a brother.

And when they got off a few blocks further on, in a region of many cafes, their party consisted of three.—N. Y. Times.

SPEND MUCH FOR AMUSEMENT.

Twenty-Five Millions Are Invested in Parks in This Country.

"It costs a lot of money to build and operate an amusement park on a large scale," says Frederic Thompson, in Everybody's.

"I suppose that more than $25,000,000 are invested in these parks in this country. Dreamland on Coney Island cost $2,500,000. River View Park and the White City in Chicago cost about a million each.

"Luna park cost $2,400,000. The total annual expenses, including the cost of rebuilding, of putting in new shows and the operating expenses, average about a million dollars, and the season lasts four months. I spent $240,000 on one show, of which $68,000 was for animals, mostly elephants and camels—it was the representation of the Indian durbar—and I lost $100,000 on it. I charged the loss up to education, and it was worth it. It costs $5,000 a week to light Luna park, and $4,500 for the music. The balance of the free performers this season are $2,500 a week. And all of these expenditures, as well as a good many others, go simply to manufacture the carnival spirit."

Unreasonable Hubby.

In the olden times a woman in the north of Scotland went to visit her husband, who was condemned to be hanged on the following day. The doomed man began to give his instructions to his wife preparatory to bidding her farewell, when she broke in upon the conversation and exclaimed: "By the by, John, whaur will I plant the tatties this year?" The unfortunate man, indignant at the indifference of his wife, exclaimed, angrily: "What need I care whaur ye plant them? I'm no likely to need any o' them!" "Hech," replied the woman, turning to the warden with a wag of her head, "our John's huffed because he's gaunt to be hanged the morn," and marched out of the cell.

Bother of Dressing Up.

Thackeray's crossing sweeper who kept his carriage was not entirely a creation of his imagination. I knew a man who took his stand daily outside a public house, fetched cabs and did odd jobs. His relatives were very well off, indeed, and they persuaded him to go and live with them.

After leading a life of luxury for a couple of months he reappeared one day outside the public house. I knew his circumstances, asked him why he had left comfort for the cold pavement.

"I had to," he said. "I stood it as long as I could, but when they wanted me to dress for dinner every time they had company I chucked it."—Referee.

Source of the Crop.

The bishop of Richmond told a good story the other day about his father. "He was a farmer," said Dr. Pultene, "and a nice old gentleman, too. One year he took it into his head to grow flax, so he sowed the seed, and, having a good crop, sent it away to be made into a tablecloth. Some time later when seated at dinner he remarked to a lady near him: 'Do you know, I grew this tablecloth myself.' 'Did you, really?' she answered, with the greatest surprise. 'How ever did you manage it?' 'Well,—most mysteriously,—if you'll promise not to tell anyone, I'll tell you. I—planted a napkin.'"

Handing Him the Lemon.

"Out in Arizona," yawned the pretty girl, "I saw an artesian well drill that had been digging away for weeks and weeks, it reminded me so much of you."

"Weally," hisped the young man who never glanced at the clock. "In what way?"

"Why, it was such a chronic bore."

Uncertainties of Fame.

"In Europe it is customary to name streets after great men."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "In some places the compliment is a little bit unsatisfactory owing to the difficulty of foretelling what kind of a street it is going to be."

Recruiting by Women.

A new and profitable vocation for women is suggested by the statement of Col. Walsh, in command of St. George's barracks recruiting station, that females are eligible as recruiting agents for the army.—London Woman.

LAW IN ITALY MOVES SLOWLY.

Man Thirty-Eight Years in House of Detention Without Trial.

Two little boys in Rome were carrying their father's pistol to the gunsmith's to be mended. They quarreled and the pistol was not so much out of order as to keep Pietro, aged 11, from shooting Paolo, aged eight.

The little fratricide was at once arrested, the magistrate committing him to prison while they prepared to deal with the case. Unfortunately for Pietro, the day which he shot his brother was September 15, 1870. On that day Gen. Bixio began his march toward Rome and two days later he entered the city.

The papal magistrates had ample excuse for forgetting Pietro, and Pietro was forgotten for about six months, when the newly appointed functionaries took up his case. So deliberately did they take it up that it was not until 1882 that all the material for the prosecution had been completed.

Then the abolition of the death penalty in Italy caused a fresh delay. Three specialists were appointed to inquire into Pietro's state of mind, and they disagreed, causing the affair to be shelved indefinitely. There is no one now who remembers at first hand the incidents of the crime.

Pietro is 49, having spent 38 years in the house of detention, and once more efforts are to be made to bring him finally to trial.

SECRET DIVULGED BY PARROT.

Servants in Nights of Merriment Had Forgotten Bird.

The late George Winthrop Sands passed last winter at St. Moritz. This robust and handsome youth, with his modest and pleasant air, was a great favorite with the distinguished band of curiers, bob-sleighers and skiers who frequent the sunny, snow-covered village of the Engadine.

There was a ball on Christmas night at the Kilm hotel, and Mr. Sands, who entertained George Cornwallis-West at his table during the ball supper, told as a bottle of champagne was being opened, a parrot story.

"I once had a parrot," he said. "It was a gray African bird, an excellent talker. I went away for a month with my family, and of course the parrot remained behind with the servants.

"Well, on my return I found that the parrot had learned a new speech. Every evening, at intervals of 15 minutes or so, it would repeat: 'Ha, ha, ha! Let's have another bottle. There's no one here to know. Plop! Gurgle-gurgle-gurgle!'"

Blush a Sign of Good Sense.

Sir Arthur Mitchell, K. C. B., of Edinburgh, who knows much that is strange about dreams, laughter and other commonplace human characteristics, has just advanced the consoling theory that blushing is an achievement of which everyone who can blush should be proud.

He says it requires brains to blush. Idiots cannot blush, neither can animals. Sir Arthur calls attention to the fact that tiny infants do not blush, although they learn to at an early age, just as soon, in fact, as the brain begins to exercise its functions. In blushing, he says, the mind always must be affected. It is always and only a bodily expression of a mental state. It is a natural thing for a blusher to say that he had tried not to blush. No individual blushes of his own free will. The blush arises without call instantaneously and vanishes almost as quickly. Neither for its coming nor its going is there any exercise of volition. It is controlled, Sir Arthur says, solely by the brain, and is a positive sign that there is an active brain there.

Like a Roentgen Picture.

As long ago as 1795 a Leipzig house published a German novel illustrated by something closely resembling a Roentgen picture. The story tells of the Countess Abilinda, who gave her heart to the knight Obello. The knightly lover was thoughtless enough to kill his lady love's father, her affection turned to hatred, she vowed to kill him. In a dream she saw the man who had fascinated her, and she stood, ready to slay him, when suddenly his form changed, and before her stood a grinning skeleton, saying: "I have already been punished." This scene is illustrated in the old book, and the picture is not unlike a Roentgen photograph. When it was published no one probably would have believed that science within a comparatively short time would make it possible to produce this picture, which the author's imagination invented.

The Silkworm.

The silkworm, which spins or produces silk threads, was a native of China. For thousands of years the Chinese would not allow the eggs of the silkworm to go out of the country. About 550, two monks are said to have brought to Europe a few eggs hidden in their canes. Now it is quite domesticated and has been so long fed by man that the female is as nearly motionless as if she had no wings, and the male merely flutters without leaving the ground.
